SnapCoat Affiliate Program

Earn recurring commission introducing painting contractors to the CRM built for their trade — and a four-figure fee on the AI programs that sit on top of it.

10% of subscription revenue, every month for 12 months	$1,000 per AI Operator Program referral	90 days cookie window — contractors don't buy the same day

THE ONE RULE THAT GOVERNS THIS PROGRAM

You are paid on money the customer actually pays.

Not on clicks, not on trials, not on signups. Commission is calculated from real collected revenue, which is why there are no clawbacks — if a customer leaves, your future commission simply stops. Nothing you have already been paid is ever taken back.

The AI Operator Program is where the real money is

A CRM referral earns you around $50 a month. A single AI Operator referral earns $1,000. If your audience is painting contractors — and especially if you already advise them on how to run their business — that one product is worth more than every subscription you will ever refer. Lead with it.

How you get paid

They click

Your link sets a 90-day cookie. Credit holds even if they buy months later.

They pay

Tracked automatically through Rewardful. Trials earn nothing until they convert.

It clears

Commission is approved after a 30-day refund window.

You're paid

Monthly via PayPal or Wise. $50 minimum; balances roll over.

What actually converts

Painting contractors are skeptical of software and have usually been burned once already. These four angles are the ones that work. Use them.

ANGLE 01 — STRONGEST

The AI employee, not the software

Most of your audience does not want another app. They want the paperwork to stop. The AI Operator Program hands a contractor an AI that answers leads, chases quotes and does the admin they hate — and it is a real device that ships to them, not a login.

"You know how you're doing quotes at 9pm? What if that just... didn't happen anymore."

ANGLE 02

Coming off DripJobs or a spreadsheet

Contractors already running a system are the easiest conversions — they have felt the pain and already believe software can help. SnapCoat imports production rates directly, so switching is not starting over.

"They'll bring your production rates across. You're not rebuilding your pricing from scratch."

ANGLE 03

Pricing that can't be undercut by accident

The proposal builder prices from production rates, labor and materials, so a rep in the field cannot quietly bid a job under cost. For an owner who has been burned by a salesperson discounting to win, that is the whole pitch.

"Your guys can't give the job away without you seeing it."

ANGLE 04

It's built by a painting company

SnapCoat is run by a contractor who still runs a painting business. Everything in it exists because a real crew needed it. That single fact closes more skeptics than any feature list.

What not to lead with: feature lists, dashboards and screenshots. Contractors do not buy software, they buy getting their evenings back and not losing money on a job. Lead with the problem, let the product be the answer.

What SnapCoat actually is

One system that runs a painting company from the first lead to the final payment. Everything below is shipping today — if it is not on this page, do not claim it.

SALES

Sales pipeline. Leads through 8 stages with goal and commission trackers on the board.

Lead Manager. Heavy filtering, bulk email and text, source analytics.

Appointments. Estimate calendar as a list, a month view, or a live map of where every salesperson is.

Proposal builder. Room by room and surface by surface, e-signature, Good/Better/Best packages each with their own markup, warranty and paint grade. Optional add-ons the customer can accept themselves.

Change orders. A signed proposal locks — extra work has to go through a change order with its own signature. No quiet edits after the fact.

Sales reports. Nine tabs: funnel, people, sources, pipeline, win/loss, geography, lost leads.

PRODUCTION

Project pipeline & production calendar. Sold jobs through six stages, with scheduled revenue and outstanding balances by week.

Work orders. Draft → dispatched → in progress → invoicing → done, generated from the sold proposal, with in-app messaging to the crew.

Subcontractor portal. Subs get their own login: work orders, photos, pay. Plus e-signed agreements, compliance documents with expiry reminders, and hiring application links.

Job checklists. Reusable by job type, and an item can require a photo — floor protection, final walkthrough.

Project costing. Real costs against the sold price, so you see actual profit per job rather than assumed profit.

GPS & geofencing. Appointments and site visits start and stop themselves on arrival and departure. Customers get an en-route notification.

MONEY

Invoicing and payments. Card and ACH through Stripe or Helcim, including physical card terminals. Payment schedules, deposits, late fees.

Commissions. Three separate tracks — salespeople, project managers and subs — with payroll-style pay periods, approvals and adjustments.

Override codes. An admin code is required for big discounts, no-deposit scheduling, or dispatching a non-compliant sub.

CUSTOMER-FACING

Branded customer portal. Your logo, your colors, your banner. Proposals, invoices, photos, renderings and appointment requests in one place.

Forms. Website lead forms with per-source tracked links, multi-step smart forms, colour selection forms and a signed completion form.

Review portal. Happy customers get routed to your public profiles; unhappy ones come to you privately first.

iOS and Android apps. Real native apps — camera, offline, push, biometric login, background location.

The AI suite

This is the differentiator. Every item here is live in the product — most of it is Elite-tier. Describe what these do; never promise what they will earn someone.

FEATURE	WHAT IT ACTUALLY DOES
AI Setter	Texts a brand-new lead within seconds, qualifies them, and books the estimate — around the clock. Hands off the moment a human replies, and obeys engagement-hour and message-cap limits so it never becomes a nuisance.
AI Closer	Works every proposal that has been sent but not signed, texting as the assigned salesperson from that rep's own number. Can be given a capped discount authority, backs off after a real phone call, and hands the deal back on a buying signal.
OwnerIQ / GARVIS	Ask your business a question in plain English — typed or spoken — and get a real answer from your live data. "What did we close last month?" "Which sales rep has the worst follow-up?" Plus a 0–100 business health score.
Call IQ	Records and transcribes inbound calls, then grades them: what the call was about, how hot the lead was, and how well the person answering handled it. Every judgement has to quote the transcript, so it cannot make things up.
AI Color Rendering	Photorealistic before/after of the customer's own house in real manufacturer colours — Sherwin-Williams, Benjamin Moore, Behr, PPG, Dunn-Edwards, Farrow & Ball, Valspar, Kelly-Moore. Masked to the actual surfaces. Attaches straight to the proposal.
AI Lead Scoring	Scores every lead on intent, engagement, urgency and budget fit, and keeps the history so you can see a lead heating up.
AI Sales Coaching	Grades recorded sales conversations on objection handling, discovery, closing technique and talk-to-listen ratio. Coaching without the owner sitting in the truck.

The AI suite

FEATURE	WHAT IT ACTUALLY DOES
AI Route Optimisation	Builds the estimate schedule around real drive times, not guesses, using live distance data.
AI Lead Nurture	Automated follow-up sequences that adapt to how the lead responds, rather than firing the same three texts at everyone.
Appointment recording	Records the estimate appointment, transcribes it, and writes a summary — so what was promised at the kitchen table is on the record.
AI Invoice Scanner	Photograph a supplier invoice and it reads the line items into the job's costs.
AI Production Rate Helper	Generates spread rates for a surface from substrate, coverage and paint product — useful for a company that has never formally priced by production rate.
AI Email & SMS composer	Writes and designs customer emails and texts in the company's voice.
AI Lead Magnet Generator	Scans the company's website for their logo, colours and reviews, then builds branded "what will my repaint cost" pages that capture leads.

Do not claim: SnapCoat does not place outbound AI phone calls, does not sync to QuickBooks for accounting, and is not a published Zapier app. Those either do not exist or are narrower than they sound. If a prospect asks and you are unsure, ask us — a wrong answer costs the sale later.

Why it beats generic software

Jobber and Housecall Pro are built for every trade. This is the part of the pitch a contractor cannot get anywhere else, and it is where you win the skeptics.

THE PRICING ENGINE

It prices the way a painter actually prices

Estimates are built from production rates — square foot, linear foot, per item or per hour — not from a guess. Seven calculation types, separate spread rates for one, two, three and four coats, substrate widths for trim, gallon coverage per product, and prep time per surface. Cabinets price on their own flat-rate packages per door and drawer.

The detail that convinces people: two coats means the job runs at the two-coat rate. It does not add the one-coat rate to itself. That single piece of arithmetic is the difference between a real estimate and a spreadsheet, and it is the thing an experienced estimator checks first.

SWITCHING

Coming off DripJobs is not starting over

SnapCoat imports leads, proposals, jobs, invoices, balances and customers — and, unusually, the company's entire production rate library. Their pricing comes with them.

SnapCoat maintains a test suite that proves its estimate maths reproduces DripJobs' numbers on a set of known jobs. That is a claim you can make plainly: the migration is checked, not hoped for.

MATERIALS

Their paints, their colours, their costs

A per-company paint product library carries brand, product, substrate, coverage per gallon, cost per gallon, markup and available sheens — so material cost in an estimate is their cost, not an industry average. The colour database holds real manufacturer codes and values across eight major brands.

The AI Operator Program — in full

$10,000 · YOU EARN $1,000

An AI employee for their business — built for them, shipped to them, and taught to them over six weeks.

This is not a chatbot and not a feature inside the CRM. It is a dedicated machine, configured around one specific business, that they talk to like a member of staff.

WHAT THEY GET

- A configured device, shipped. Built for their business over one to two weeks, then couriered to them. Not a login — hardware that runs their AI.
- They talk to it like staff. Over Slack or Telegram, from their phone, in plain English.
- Six weeks of 1:1 coaching. Weekly, live. The programme is about delegation — each week they hand over one more job they currently do themselves.
- SnapCoat Elite included for as long as their retainer runs.
- An ongoing retainer after week six — $750/mo maintenance and support, or $1,500/mo which adds done-for-you Meta advertising.

HOW THE SIX WEEKS RUNS

- Kick-off. Pick the three jobs they most want off their plate. Hand over access. Build begins.
- Week 1 — the habit. Get them talking to it daily. This is the week that decides whether the whole thing works.
- Week 2 — connect it. Wire it into their systems and give it memory of their business.
- Weeks 3–5 — hand over the three jobs, one per week. Set the rules for what it may do alone, and what it must ask about first.
- Week 6 — graduation. Scored against the exact promise made in week zero, then the retainer begins.

How to sell it in one sentence

Compare it to hiring. An office administrator costs roughly $36,000 a year, needs managing, and leaves. This is a one-time build with a support retainer, and it works at 11pm on a Sunday. Capacity is genuinely limited to about four builds a month — that is a real constraint, not a scarcity tactic, so do not promise anyone a start date.

Rules of the program

Short list, and none of it is a surprise. Breaking anything in the right-hand column ends your participation and forfeits unpaid commission.

ENCOURAGED

- Your own audience. Newsletter, YouTube, podcast, community, course, coaching clients, social following.
- Honest reviews and comparisons. Including where SnapCoat is not the right fit. Nothing converts contractors like being told the truth.
- Demos and walkthroughs. Ask us for a demo account rather than using screenshots of someone's live data.
- Disclosing the relationship. Say you earn a commission. It is required by the FTC and it costs you nothing in trust.
- Asking us for help. We will build you a landing page, give you assets, or hop on a call with a serious prospect.

GROUND FOR REMOVAL

- Bidding on our brand. No paid search on "SnapCoat", "SnapCoat CRM" or misspellings. You would be charging us to buy customers who were already ours.
- Coupon, deal or voucher sites. They intercept buyers who had already decided and add nothing.
- Unsolicited email, DMs or forum spam. Our domain reputation is not yours to spend.
- Speaking as SnapCoat. Do not imply you work here, run support, or can authorize refunds, discounts or contract terms.
- Income claims. Never promise a contractor what they will earn, save or close. You do not know, and that promise becomes our liability.
- Self-referral. You cannot refer your own company, or a company you own part of, to earn commission on your own subscription.
- Cookie stuffing or forced clicks. Any attempt to set tracking without a genuine click.

On income claims specifically: we are strict about this because it is the one rule that can create a legal problem for both of us. Describe what the product does. Never describe what it will earn someone.

Terms

ITEM	TERMS
Attribution	Last click, 90-day cookie. Tracked by Rewardful and tied to the customer's payment record, so credit survives across devices once they check out.
Commission window	Subscription commission runs 12 months from the customer's first payment, then stops. There is no residual beyond that.
When it's earned	On cash collected . Trials, unpaid invoices and refunded payments earn nothing.
Clawbacks	None. If a customer cancels, future commission stops — money already paid to you is never reclaimed. A refund inside the 30-day approval window is simply not approved.
Payment	Monthly, via PayPal or Wise, after a 30-day approval period. $50 minimum ; smaller balances roll to the next month.
Existing customers	Commission is for new customers only. A company already subscribed, in trial, or in an active sales conversation with us is not eligible.
Overlap with our sales team	If our team sells White Glove Onboarding, Meta or the Operator Program to a customer you referred, you still earn your subscription commission — and the Operator and Meta commissions above where your referral drove them.
Changes	We may change rates or terms with 30 days' notice . Changes never reduce commission already earned on payments already collected.
Ending it	Either side may end participation at any time. Commission earned before that date is still paid on the normal schedule unless the program was breached.

The short version

Send painting contractors who genuinely need this. Be honest, disclose that you earn a commission, and don't buy our name on Google. Lead with the AI Operator Program — that is where a real audience turns into real money.

About these figures. Commission rates describe what is paid on collected revenue and are not a projection of what any affiliate will earn. Actual earnings depend entirely on what you refer and on customers continuing to pay. This document summarizes a program and is not a contract; the affiliate terms accepted at signup govern. It is confidential and intended only for approved SnapCoat affiliates.
